

Cleveland State University (CSU)

September 2023 to August 2024

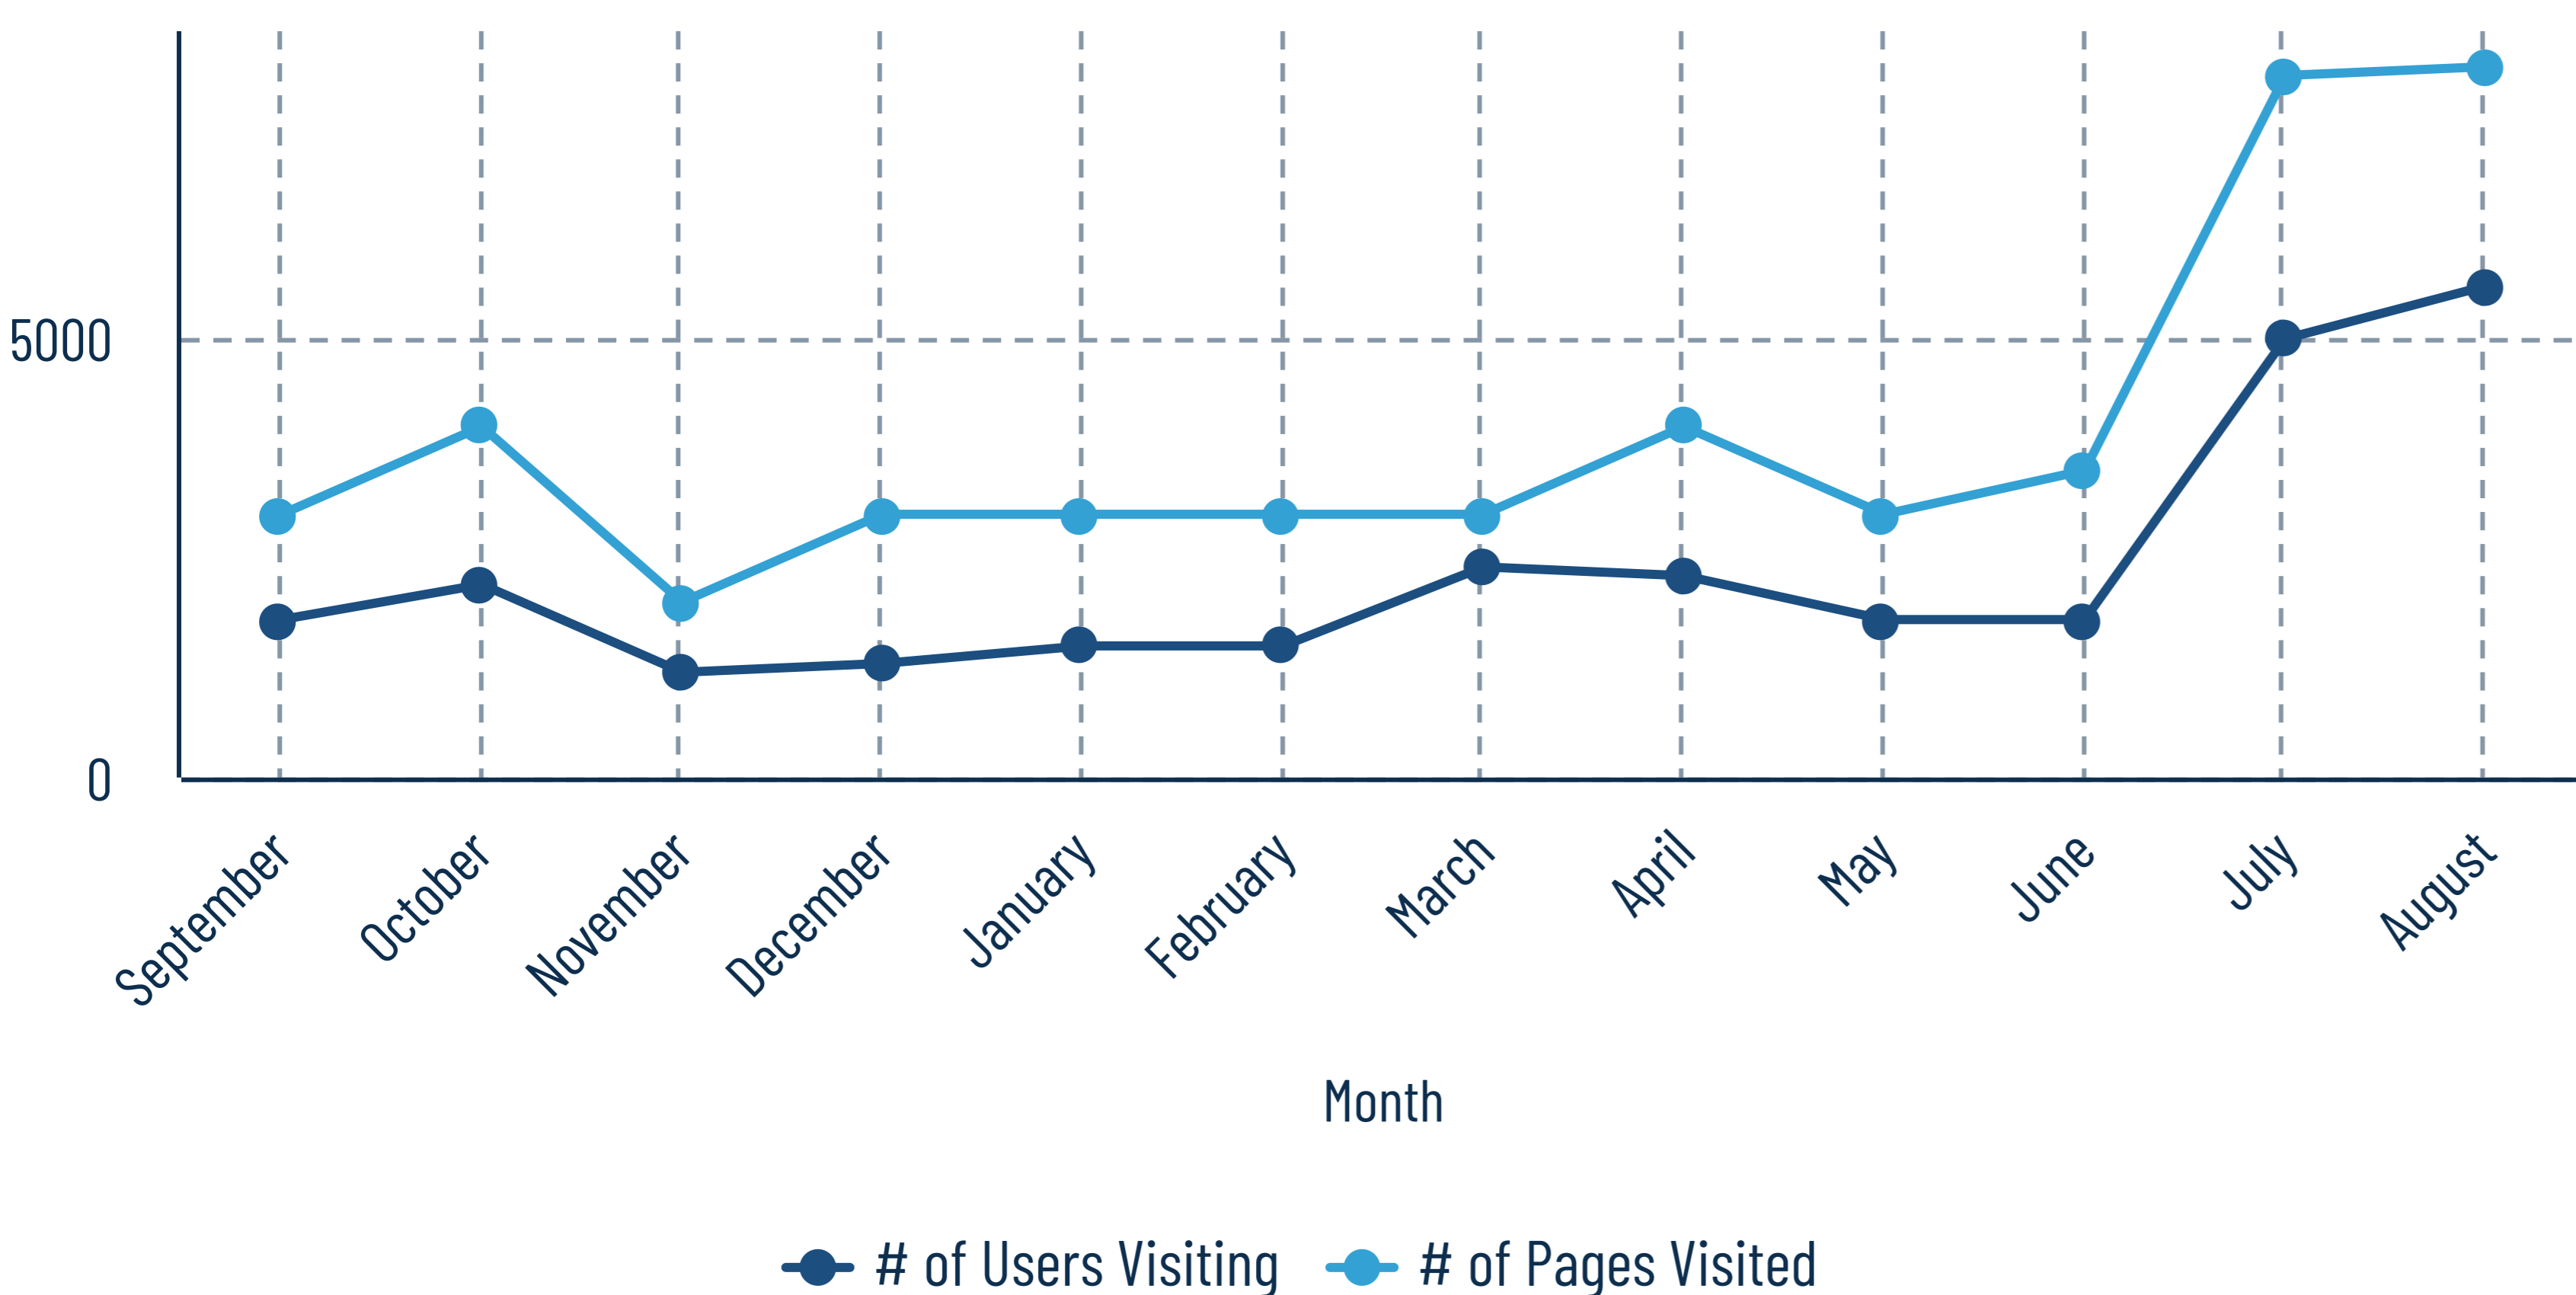

Cleveland State University's (CSU) DrugHelp.care is an accessible website designed to connect individuals with substance use disorders to treatment services. By allowing providers to list available openings daily, the platform matches those seeking help with necessary resources. DrugHelp.care now lists a wider variety of treatment and harm reduction services and has increased the pool of providers. These initiatives support prevention, treatment, data collection, and public policy development, reinforcing the goal of timely and effective interventions.

The OD2A evaluation Team, evaluates the ways in which drughelp.care is effective in connecting individuals with available treatment and harm reduction services. Metrics include the number of web app visitors, total page views, registered agencies and services, and agencies providing on-demand information about available slots and wait times.
